SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30, 2014 /PRNewswire/ -- Prologis, Inc. (NYSE: PLD), the global leader in logistics infrastructure, today announced that the Shanghai Municipal Government has honored Ben Cornish, president, Prologis China, with the prestigious Magnolia Gold Award for his outstanding contributions to the city.

The award is given annually to expatriates who have significantly contributed to Shanghai's economic and social development. Created in 1989, the award is one of the highest recognitions given to foreign citizens living in the city. To date, only 278 individuals have received the distinction.

A veteran of real estate development in Asia since 1997, Mr. Cornish led Prologis China to its current status as a respected provider of Class-A logistics facilities. Under his leadership, Prologis China has made valuable contributions to the country's transition from an export-led growth model to an economy based on domestic consumption and technological innovation.

Mr. Cornish received the Magnolia Silver Award in 2012.

"I am deeply honored by this award," Cornish said. "This is not only the highest praise for me personally, it also reflects the dedication of the entire Prologis team, whose everyday efforts enhance Shanghai's growth and development."

Since launching country operations in 2003, Prologis has been recognized on several occasions for its contribution to China's economy, industrial evolution and social responsibility.
